Company Background

At WetStone we develop software solutions that support investigators and analyst engaged in the eCrime Investigation, eForensics and incident response activities.

Philosophy

Our philosophy is simple; we perform advanced research and development for our U.S. Government sponsors and rapidly transition the resulting core innovations into software products for our customers. An important byproduct of our research is the subject matter expertise that we gain. We leverage this expertise into advanced training programs that give our Defense, Law Enforcement and Commercial customers an advantage defending against cyber crime.

Allen Corporation

In early 2007 WetStone was acquired by Allen Corporation of America with corporate headquarters located in Fairfax, VA. Employing more than 250 people throughout the United States, Allen is a dynamic, rapidly growing company that provides expertise in full information systems life cycle management.

Software Solutions

Our investigative software solutions focus on advanced tools and methods that support a wide range of investigator needs. Whether responding to an incident, performing audits or pen tests, mapping networks, discovering malicious code, time stamping digital evidence, exposing steganography usage or collecting evidence from live running systems, our solutions put high performance capabilities into the hands of our customers.

Training

Our investigator training programs provide investigators access to the latest methods, techniques and technologies delivered in a hands-on operational environment. Each of our training classes offer students certification as well as continuing education credits to help advance their knowledge and careers.

Research and Development

At our core, we perform scientific research and development in cyber security and information assurance.
