

Gargoyle Investigator™ LE

Gargoyle Investigator LE is a software scanning tool that provides investigators the ability to detect and categorize child sexual abuse material (CSAM) present on live and imaged systems.

Powered by WetStone's high-performance scanning engine, Gargoyle Investigator LE integrates Microsoft's PhotoDNA hashing algorithms and Project VIC's CSAM datasets to perform fast and accurate identification of exploitative media files. Files are scanned based on the scope set by the investigator. The source of files can be a directory, mounted disk image, or a disk volume.

Gargoyle Investigator LE leverages Project VICS Data Model, a standards-based protocol for the exchange of exploitation hashes without having to touch or manipulate the data. Gargoyle Investigator LE also utilizes PhotoDNA technology to calculate a signature, or hash, which can be compared to another image. The PhotoDNA hash is used to find "duplicates" of a given image, even if the image has undergone simple modifications such as re-sizing, compression, and contrast changes. Detections are displayed in the scan report and presented with categorized file information and optional pixelated images.
